

LAW SCHOOL HOSTS CHINESE WTO SCHOLARS

Jeffrey L. Dunoff,
Charles Klein
Professor of Law
and Government and Co-director of the Institute of International Law and Public Policy
lectures visiting Chinese legal scholars.

Temple ESQ.

LAW SCHOOL AND ALUMNI NEWS • FALL 2002

This summer eight Chinese scholars gathered in Philadelphia to take an in-depth look at the legal issues surrounding China's membership in the World Trade Organization. In a unique program organized by Temple University Beasley School of Law, the "WTO scholars" were guided in their inquiry by faculty from Temple and other law schools, and given the opportunity to focus on research related to the complex changes in law and policy that China has to undergo to meet its obligations as a member of the WTO.

The group consisted of five law professors, one top-ranking trade official, one judge from China's Supreme People's Court, and a private attorney. During their month-long stay, they were provided with office space at the law school, and time to think.

Participants met with high-ranking U.S. trade officials in Washington, D.C., visited the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, and participated in a lively series of brown-bag luncheon seminars led by faculty from Temple and other universities. In one session, Dean Robert J. Reinstein lectured on the institution of judicial review of legislation. Professor Jeffrey Dunoff, Director of the LL.M. in Transnational Law and Co-Director of the Institute for Law and Policy, spoke to the group about cutting-edge issues in WTO law, and Professor Amelia Boss, the Institute's other co-director, spoke about electronic commerce issues. Professor Laura Little, former Supreme Court clerk, presented an insider's guide to the Supreme Court, and Professor Richard Greenstein gave a talk on legal reasoning.

"This was a group of extremely capable scholars with a very high level of intellectual curiosity," says Assistant Dean Adelaide Ferguson. "We gave them access to American scholars and professionals who could satisfy that curiosity."

During their month at Temple, each of the Chinese visitors prepared a scholarly paper on WTO law. Near the end of their stay, they presented these papers to a group of leading WTO experts from Temple and other law schools, think tanks, government officials, practitioners, and former trade negotiators for the U.S. and other governments. The papers addressed a variety of issues, including the interplay of WTO law and domestic law; the role of regionalism in a multilateral system; and interpretation of the TRIPS agreement and its effects on developing countries. The papers will be published in an upcoming issue of Temple's International and Comparative Law Journal.

Participants at the roundtable gathering were the following:

- John Audley, Senior Associate of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, where he serves as the Director of the Trade, Environment, and Development Project.
- Claude Barfield, Resident Scholar and Director of Science and Technology Policy Studies and Coordinator of Trade Policy Studies at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

continued on page two

AIG Donates Additional $2.5 Million to Temple in China

Total AIG grants for rule of law program now $4.5 million

Temple University's Beasley School of Law has received a $2.5 million endowment grant from the Starr Foundation, AIG's charitable giving organization, in support of the law school's innovative LL.M. program in China. This latest donation is in addition to previous Starr Foundation grants for this program of $2 million.

Created at the invitation of the Chinese government in 1999, Temple's LL.M. program is the first and only foreign law degree-granting program in China's history. The program is run in collaboration with New York University, Brigham Young University, and Tsinghua University in Beijing. Chinese judges, legal officials, law professors and lawyers are educated in U.S. and international law, and graduates are awarded a Temple LL.M. degree in international law.

Sixty-five students have graduated from the program's first two classes. Currently, there are 48 Chinese students enrolled in Temple's unique program, ten of whom are judges. Forty-four are attending classes at Tsinghua and four are attending classes in Philadelphia.

"Like Temple, AIG has a strong presence in China and has been a leading advocate for China's efforts to institute a rule of law," said Robert J. Reinstein, dean of Temple University's Beasley School of Law. "AIG understands that China's success in operating a market economy is dependent upon its establishing a fair and credible legal system. Our program is designed to educate Chinese legal professionals as they construct and implement that legal system."

AIG is the leading U.S.-based international insurance and financial services organization and the largest underwriter of commercial and industrial insurance in the United States. The company was originally founded in Shanghai, China. The endowment grants for Temple's rule of law program will provide student scholarships for the 15-month program, which includes study in Beijing and at Temple's main campus in Philadelphia.

Temple's ground-breaking program was also recently bolstered with a $1.75 million grant from the U.S.

As we go to press, we have learned that Dean Robert J. Reinstein has been selected to receive the 2002 National Friendship Award of China. The award ceremony, held in Beijing on September 30, will be followed by a Philadelphia reception in Dean Reinstein's honor on October 10 (see calendar on page eight). Reinstein is shown at left with Professor Mo Zhang.

Agency for International Development (USAID). In addition, Temple has received contributions from a number of foundations and corporations, including the Trace and Luce Foundations, General Motors, DuPont, Microsoft, CIGNA and United Airlines.

In addition to the LL.M. program, Temple is taking the lead in creating innovative legal training for Chinese lawyers in other arenas:

- 580 judges from across China have attended intensive judicial training sessions in Beijing, conducted by Dean Robert J. Reinstein and Professors Jeffrey Dunoff and Eleanor Myers.
- 25 Chinese judges attended a summer program in 2002, conducted at NYU and taught by professors from NYU and Temple Law Schools. Lectures focused on issues including the WTO, administrative law and civil procedure. The participants also traveled to Washington, D.C. to meet with judges and other U.S. government officials.
- 40 Chinese lawyers are enrolled in an intensive legal English program designed to prepare them for the LL.M. degree.
- Content-specific think tanks have been developed in areas such as WTO law (see sidebar) and property law.

WTO SCHOLARS continued from page one

- Adam Bobrow, Attorney-adviser in the Office of General Counsel for International Commerce at the U.S. Department of Commerce.
- Amelia H. Boss, Charles Klein Professor of Law at Temple University, Co-Director of the Institute for International Law and Public Policy.
- Laura B. Campbell, Director of Environmental Law International.
- Steve Charnovitz, Attorney, Wilmer, Cutler, and Pickering.
- Jacques deLisle, Professor of Law, University of Pennsylvania.
- Jeffrey Dunoff, Charles Klein Professor of Law and Government at Temple University and Co-Director of the Institute on International Law and Public Policy.
- Antonio Gidi, Visiting Scholar at Temple Law School's Institute for International Law and Public Policy.
- Huang Jin, Professor of Law and Director of the Research Institute of International Law at Wuhan University, and Vice President of the Chinese Society of International Law.
- Judge Kong Xiangjun, former Deputy Chief of the Administrative Law Chamber of the Supreme People's Court of China.
- Salil Mehra, Assistant Professor of Law at Temple University.
- Sylvia Ostry, Distinguished Research Fellow at the Centre for International Studies at the University of Toronto.
- Rao Geping, Professor of Law and Director of the International Law Institute at Beijing University, and Vice President of the China Society of International Law.
- Matt Schaefer, Professor of Law at the University of Nebraska, and former director, International Economic Affairs on the National Security Council during the Clinton Administration.
- Chantal Thomas, Associate Professor of Law at Fordham University.
- Tong Xinchao, partner and co-head of the International Law Group at East Associates.
- Joel Trachtman, Manley Hudson Visiting Professor of Law at Harvard University.
- Wang Chenguang, Dean and Professor of Law at Tsinghua University.

- Yang Guohua, Director for WTO Legal Affairs in the Department of Treaty and Law at the Ministry of Foreign Trade and Economic Cooperation.
- Zhang Naigen, Professor of Law at Fudan University.
- Zhu Lanye, Professor of Law and Vice Dean of the International Law Department at the East China University of Politics and Law in Shanghai.

Professor Sylvia Ostry, University of Toronto

*Tong Xinchao, East
Associates (left) with Professor Joel
Trachtman, Harvard
Law School*

*Wall Street Journal reporter Neil King with Professor Matt Shaffer,
University of Nebraska
Law School*

Steve Charnovitz of Wilmer, Cutler and Pickering (left) with Wang Chenguang, Dean and Professor of Law, Tsinghua University.

GRADUATION 2002

Temple University
Beasley School of Law
Graduation 2002

JOE LABOLITO

*Student Bar Association President Chris
Christopher J. Cerski presented the George P.
Williams Award to Professor Nancy Knauer at this year's graduation ceremony.*

Student speaker for the evening division was Laurie J. Nelson.

Imiebihoro Teresa Ahonkhai was selected to speak for the day division.

TEMPLE ESQ.

Published by the Temple University
Beasley School of Law for alumni and friends.
Robert J. Reinstein, Dean

Janet Goldwater, Publications Director
Gene Gilroy, Art Director
Photography on location at Temple
Law School by Kelly & Massa

Send letters and comments to:
Janet Goldwater, Temple Esq.
Temple University James E. Beasley School of Law
1719 N. Broad Street, Room 313
Philadelphia, PA 19122
Telefax: (215) 204-1185
Change of Address: (215) 204-1187

TEMPLE SEES RECORD NUMBER OF LAW SCHOOL APPLICATIONS

The law students who took their seats for the first time on August 19, 2002, had survived the most competitive application process ever in Temple Law School's history.

This past year was a bumper year for law school applications. Admissions officers across the country report a sharp increase in the number of applicants. Experts cite the recent economic downturn, as well as disillusionment with big business, as factors in applicants' choice to study the law.

Temple was no exception to the trend, with 32% more applicants than last year, higher than the national average increase of 17%. The all-time high pool of 4,311 applicants was ultimately narrowed down to yield this year's entering class of 348, approximately the same size as last year's class.

The decision-making process is never easy, but this year Temple's admissions committee accepted only 31% of those applying. Looking at LSAT scores and undergraduate grade point averages as indicators, Temple's large applicant pool was also very well qualified. The median LSAT score of the entering class has increased over the last five years from a 153 (55th percentile) to a 159 (78th percentile). Moreover, in 1998 25% of the entering students had LSAT scores of 157 or higher; in 2002, 75% of the entering students had LSAT scores of 157 or higher. These increases in LSATs were not made to the detriment of undergraduate grade point averages; the median GPA of the entering class has also increased substantially over the last five years, from 3.18 to 3.39.

The interest in legal education continues to grow. A record number of people have signed up to take the LSATs in October 2002—an increase of at least 25% over 2001.

TEMPLE'S ENTERING CLASS OF 2002

- 348 students-265 day, 83 evening
- 33% direct from undergraduate school
- average age: 26
- 15% with graduate degrees
- male/female ratio of 55:45, after two years of a female majority
- median LSAT, 159; median GPA, 3.39
- 69% Pennsylvania residents
- 18% minority enrollment
- top feeder schools, in order: Penn State, Penn and Temple

Liacouras Walk connects the law school's three buildings: Klein Hall, Shusterman Hall and Barrack Hall.

New Faculty Chair Appointments

SCOTT BURRIS
James E. Beasley
Professor of Law

The new James E. Beasley Professor of Law, Professor Scott Burris, was also the 1999 recipient of the Friel/Scanlan Award for scholarship and research.

A leader in the field of AIDS/HIV law, Professor Burris has been awarded two major grants from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation in support of his research on legal issues and attitudes surrounding medical care provided to intravenous drug-using patients, and in 2000 he received a major grant from the American Foundation for AIDS Research. He served as counsel for the AIDS and Civil Liberties Project of the American Civil Liberties Union from 1988-1991.

Burris teaches courses on AIDS/HIV, torts, law and social science, civil rights of individuals with disabilities, disability discrimination, and civil procedure at Temple Law School. He is also associate director and senior associate of the Center for Law and the Public's Health at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health. Burris received a B.A. from Washington University (1980), and a J.D. from Yale University (1987). Recent publications include the following:

The Impact of HIV/AIDS on the Development of Public Health Law, in USEFUL TROUBLE: HOW HIV/AIDS HAS STRENGTHENED PUBLIC HEALTH (Ronald O. Valdiserri ed., Oxford, forthcoming 2002) (with Gostin).

Genetic Screening from a Public Health Perspective: Three 'Ethical' Principles, in A COMPANION TO GENETHICS (Justine Burley and John Harris eds., Blackwell, 2002) (with Gostin).

Deregulation of Hypodermic Needles and Syringes as a Public Health Measure: A Report on Emerging Policy and Law in the United States (A Report of the AIDS Coordinating Committee, American Bar Association, 2001) (with Ng) (reprinted at 12 George Mason U. Civ. Rts. L.J. 69 2001).

OSHA in a Health Care Context, in TUBERCULOSIS IN THE WORKPLACE (Marilyn Field ed., Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Sciences, 2001) (with Crabtree).

Clinical Decision Making in the Shadow of Law, in ETHICAL ISSUES IN HIV-RELATED PSYCHOTHERAPY (John Anderson & Robert Barret eds., APA Books, 2001).

A Decision Model for Ethical Dilemmas in HIV-related Psychotherapy and its Application in the Case of Jerry, in ETHICAL ISSUES IN HIV-RELATED PSYCHOTHERAPY (with Barret & Kitchener).

A Road Map for ADA Title I Research, in EMPLOYMENT, DISABILITY, AND THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT: ISSUES IN LAW, PUBLIC POLICY, AND RESEARCH (Peter Blanck ed., Northwestern University Press, 2000) (with Moss).

Public Health Surveillance of Genetic Information: Ethical and Legal Responses to Social Risk, in GENETICS AND PUBLIC HEALTH IN THE 21ST CENTURY: USING GENETIC INFORMATION TO IMPROVE HEALTH AND PREVENT DISEASE (Muin Khoury, Wylie Burke and Elizabeth Thomson eds., Oxford University Press, 2000) (with Gostin & Tress).

Improving State Law to Prevent and Treat Infectious Disease (Milbank Memorial Fund Report, 1998) (with Gostin, Lazzarini & Maguire).

Genetic Screening from a Public Health Perspective: Some Lessons from the HIV Experience, in GENETIC SECRETS: PRIVACY, CONFIDENTIALITY, AND NEW GENETIC TECHNOLOGY (Mark Rothstein ed., Yale University Press, 1998) (with Gostin).

JEFFREY L. DUNOFF
Charles Klein
Professor of Law and Government

Charles Klein Professor of Law and Government

Professor Jeffrey L. Dunoff, director of the LL.M. in Transnational Law program, is also co-director of the Institute for International Law and Public Policy. Founded in 2001 with Professor and co-director Amelia H. Boss, the Institute hosts scholars and programs and promotes cutting-edge research in international law, and is a member of the EPA's national advisory committee.

Professor Dunoff is vice chair of the international economic law interest group of the American Society of International Law and associate editor of the Yearbook of International Environmental Law. He has taught at the Woodrow Wilson School of Princeton University, starting as a fellow in spring 1998, and most recently as a visiting professor in 2001. He teaches courses in international Law, international environmental law, international commercial transactions and civil procedure.

Dunoff holds a B.A. from Haverford College (1982), a J.D. from New York University (1986), and an LL.M. from Georgetown University (1992). He was also a Ford Foundation Fellow in Public International Law. Dunoff's recent publications include:

INTERNATIONAL LAW: NORMS, ACTORS, PROCESS (2002) (with Steven Ratner & David Wippman).

Economic Analysis and International Law in ECONOMIC ANALYSIS OF LAW: A EUROPEAN PERSPECTIVE (Aristides Hatzis, ed., forthcoming 2002) (with Joel Trachtman).

How Should International Economic Disputes Be Resolved? 42 S. TEX. L. REV. 1219 (2001).

The WTO in Transition: Of Constituents, Competence and Coherence, 33 GEORGE WASHINGTON INT'L L. REV. 979 (2001).

Civil Society at the WTO: The Illusion of Inclusion?, 7 J. INT'L & COMP. L. 275 (2001).

International Dispute Resolution: Can the WTO Learn From MEA's? in TRADE AND ENVIRONMENT, THE WTO AND MEA'S: FACETS OF A COMPLEX RELATIONSHIP 63 (2001).

Some Costs and Benefits of Economic Analysis of International Law, 94 PROCEEDINGS OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW 185 (2000).

The NAFTA Experience, in Trade, Environment and Sustainable Development (P. Konz, et al., eds. 2000).

International Legal Scholarship at the Millennium, 1 CHI. J. INT'L L. 85 (2000).

Globalization and the Environment: The Limits of the Law, in SECURITY, TRADE AND ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY: A US/EUROPEAN UNION TRANSATLANTIC AGENDA 187 (C. Bonser, ed. 2000).

The Death of the Trade Regime, 10 EUROPEAN J. INT'L L. 733 (1999).

The Law and Economics of Humanitarian Law Violations in Internal Conflicts, 93 AM. J. OF INT'L L. 394 (1999) (with Joel Trachtman), reprinted in part in L. DAMROSCH, ET AL. INTERNATIONAL LAW (4th ed. 2001) and reprinted in part in C. BLAKESLEY, ET AL., THE INTERNATIONAL LEGAL SYSTEM (5th ed. 2001).

continued on next page

NEW FACULTY CHAIR APPOINTMENTS

continued from previous page

NANCY J. KNAUER
Peter J. Liacouras
Professor of Law

Professor Nancy J. Knauer joined the Temple Law School faculty in 1991 after working at Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll for seven years. Consistently singled out for her dynamic teaching by students and colleagues, Professor Knauer was named one of only three Temple University Great Teachers in 2002. Previously, she won the Williams Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1994, 1998, and 2002. Knauer teaches popular courses on property, trusts and estates, taxation, estate planning, tax policy, and sexual orientation and the law. In addition to classroom teaching, Knauer is a faculty adviser to the Temple Political and Civil Rights Law Review, and to Temple Law Students for Lesbian and Gay Rights. She helped develop a Queer Theory discussion group as well as a series of faculty colloquia highlighting concerns of gays and lesbians in the classroom. With Professor Eleanor Myers, Knauer created the award-winning Integrated Transactional Program. Knauer holds a B.A. (1981) and a J.D. (1984) from the University of Pennsylvania. Her recent publications include:

The September 11 Attacks and Surviving Same-sex Partners: Defining Family Through Tragedy, 75 Temple L. Rev. 32 (2002).

“Simply So Different:” the Uniquely Expressive Character of the Openly Gay Individual After Boy Scouts v. Dale, 89 Ky. L.J. 997 (2001).

Homosexuality as Contagion: From the Well of Loneliness to the Boy Scouts, 29 HOFSTRA L. REV. 401 (2001).

The Unhappy Invert? Book review, THE TRIALS OF RADCLYFFE HALL, BY DIANA SOUHAMI. THE JURIST: BOOKS ON LAW, December, 1999.

Same-sex Domestic Violence: Claiming a Domestic Sphere While Risking Negative Stereotypes, 8 Temp. Pol. & Civ. Rts. L. Rev. 245 (1999); reprinted in DOMESTIC VIOLENCE (Nancy K.D. Lemon, ed., West 2000).

Transactional Practice Series, NITA (1998-1999).

The Allegheny Bankruptcy: An Affront to the Spirit of Charitable Giving, PENNSYLVANIA LAW WEEKLY 13, Sept. 28, 1998.

Heteronormativity and Federal Tax Policy, 101 W. VA. L. REV. 129 (1998).

Foreword: Domestic Partnership Symposium, 7 TEMP. POL. & CIVIL RIGHTS L. REV. 245 (1998).

Domestic Partnership as Marketplace Innovation: A Less than Perfect Institutional Choice?, 7 TEMP. POL. & CIV. RIGHTS. L. REV. 337 (1998).

Reinventing Government: The Promise of Institutional Choice and Government Created Charitable Organizations, 41 N.Y.L. SCH. L. REV. 945 (1997).

LAURA E. LITTLE
James E. Beasley
Professor of Law

Professor Laura E. Little has been named James E. Beasley Professor of Law. Professor Little has earned much acclaim for both her teaching and scholarship. She received the Lindback Award for distinguished teaching in 2000 and is a three-time winner of the Williams Award, honored for excellence in teaching by the 1993, 1997, and 2001 graduating classes. In 1995, she won the Friel/Scanlan Award for outstanding scholarship in the field of federal courts.

Little, who specializes in federal jurisdiction, conflict of laws, international criminal law, and civil procedure, lectures internationally on adjudication and decision-making. Little earned a B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania (1985), and a J.D. from Temple University (1979). She subsequently served as law clerk to William H. Rehnquist, Chief Justice of the United States, and practiced law in Philadelphia. She lectures frequently for judicial and academic conferences. Her recent publications include:

Negotiating the Tangle of Law and Emotion, 86 CORNELL L. REV. 974 (2001).

The ABA's Role in Prescreening Federal Judicial Candidates: Are We Ready to Give up on the Lawyers? 10 WM & MARY BILL OF RTS J. 37 (2001).

Jealousy, Envy, and Separation of Powers, 52 HASTINGS L.J. 47 (2000).

Hiding with Words: Obfuscation, Avoidance, and Federal Jurisdiction Opinions, 46 UCLA L. REV. 75 (1998).

ADVOCACY BEFORE APPELLATE COURTS, VOLS. I AND II (1998).

K. G. JAN PILLAI
I. Herman Stern
Professor of Law

The new I. Herman Stern Professor of Law, K. G. Jan Pillai, has been a member of the law school faculty for almost three decades. Professor Pillai teaches a broad range of courses in the areas of administrative law, business law, and constitutional law. Before joining the Temple Law School faculty in 1973, Pillai served for three years as executive director of the Aviation Consumer Action Project. In 1986-7, he took a leave from the faculty to serve as the director of the Office of Regulatory Analysis of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Pillai earned his undergraduate and law degrees from University of Kerala, in 1957 and 1965, and an LL.M. and J.S.D. from Yale University, in 1967 and 1969, where he won the Ambrose Gherini Prize for the outstanding J.S.D. thesis. Pillai is the former chair (1993-95) and vice-chair (1996-2002) of the adjudication committee of the ABA section on administrative law, and former chair (1995-96) of the civil rights and employment discrimination committee of the American Bar Association section on administrative law. In 1970, Pillai published his book, “The Air Net: The Case Against the World Aviation Cartel.” He is a contributing author of “The Monopoly Makers” (1974). His recent publications include the following:

Shrinking Domain of Invidious Intent, 9 WM & MARY BILL OF RTS J. 525 (2001).

Neutrality of the Equal Protection Clause, 27 HASTINGS CONST. L.Q. 89 (2000).

In Defense of Congressional Power and Minority Rights Under the Fourteenth Amendment, 68 MISS. L.J. 431 (1999).

Phantom of the Strict Scrutiny, 31 NEW ENG. L. REV. 397 (1997).

Rethinking Judicial Immunity for the Twenty-First Century, 39 How. L.J. 95 (1995).

CLASS NOTES

1959
Joseph H. Kenney has been awarded the New Jersey State Bar Foundation’s prestigious Medal of Honor for his longstanding dedication to New Jersey’s legal system. The award, given each year to candidates who have made outstanding contributions to improving the justice system, was presented to Kenney in June 2002. He is a former chair of the New Jersey State Bar Foundation and served as chair of its scholarship committee for many years. He is a founding and senior partner of Kenney & Kearney of Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

1968
Robert A. Rovner has been re-elected for an additional three-year term to the Temple Law Alumni Association Executive Committee.

1969
Jonathan D. Weiner, a partner in the corporate department of Fox, Rothschild, O’Brien & Frankel, has been listed in the 2001-02 edition of Corporate Counsel’s Best Lawyers in America, in the category of health care law, for the 11th straight year. The New Jersey Monthly Magazine has also named Weiner one of the “100 Best Lawyers in New Jersey.” He concentrates his practice in the representation of health care providers in New Jersey.

1971
Michael A. Della Vecchia was elected to the Allegheny County, Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas in 2002.

Jay Glickman, a partner in the Lansdale, Pennsylvania firm Rubin, Glickman & Steinberg, has been appointed to serve on the advisory committee on decedents’ estate law to the Pennsylvania State Government Commission. Glickman’s practice focuses on estate planning and administration. Also in 2002, Timothy J. Savage was confirmed as a judge on the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. Stewart Weintraub, a partner in Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis’ Philadelphia office, chaired a seminar on property tax in Pennsylvania in July 2002. Weintraub serves as editor-in-chief of the American Bar Association Property Tax Deskbook, and is author of its Pennsylvania chapter. He is a member of Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis’ litigation services department and tax practice group. Weintraub is president of Temple Law Alumni Association.

1974
Michael Pollack, a partner of Blank Rome Comisky & McCauley, has been elected to a three-year term on the International Association of Attorneys and Executives in Corporate Real Estate’s board of directors. Pollack concentrates his law practice on development, leasing, and joint ventures and construction.

1975
Elias S. Cohen, a solo practitioner, has been awarded the American Society on Aging Senior Award for contributions on improving the lives of senior citizens. In October 2001, Cohen delivered the luncheon address at the fourth Long Term Care Conference on quality of care and life issues for the elderly disabled. He has published on issues of gerontology; “Quality of Life vs. Quality Care” will appear in Aging Today, a publication of the American Society on Aging.

Thomas DeLorenzo, a shareholder with Marshall, Dennehey, Warner, Coleman & Goggin, participated in a Pennsylvania Trial Lawyers’ Association seminar on voir-dire, openings and closings, where he

Joseph W. Anthony '74

Minneapolis lawyer with a national civil litigation practice named to Board of Visitors

Joseph W. Anthony, co-founder and managing partner of Anthony Ostlund & Baer, a 20-lawyer boutique civil litigation firm, was welcomed onto the Law School's Board of Visitors this year.

"Joe is one of the outstanding trial lawyers in the country," says Abe Reich '74, former chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association and a partner at Fox, Rothschild, O'Brien & Frankel. "He's a wonderful lawyer—just a down-to-earth decent guy who has achieved wonderful success in the practice of law."

Anthony and Reich are longtime friends who share a lot of history. Both grew up in Connecticut, the sons of immigrant and first-generation parents. Although they competed against each other on inner-city high school basketball teams—Anthony in Bridgeport and Reich in New Haven—they didn't really meet until they enrolled at the University of Connecticut and became fraternity brothers.

After graduation, Reich, his new wife Sherri '74, and Anthony all enrolled at Temple Law School. Anthony planned to go to school at night and work during the day, he says, "but Temple offered me some scholarship money and some loans, which allowed me to go during the day. It gave me the opportunity to be a lawyer. That's why I've been a strong contributor and supporter of Temple."

When the friends graduated from Temple in 1974, they headed in different directions. Reich joined Fox, Rothschild, and Anthony decided to head west.

"Back then, the hot cities were Seattle and Denver," he recalls. He'd read an article in Time magazine about Minneapolis and decided to send resumes there as well. "I drove there first and I ran out of money in Minneapolis," he says. "I got a job offer from a big firm and I figured, 'Well, this is still west of where I was.' So that's where I stayed."

Anthony was a partner with Larkin, Hoffman, Daly & Lindgren until 1985. By then the firm had grown from 11 lawyers to over 75, but the practice was not as fulfilling as he'd hoped. "I just decided that I wanted to have my own firm focusing on complicated or complex business litigation," he says. "I left to start my own firm with a lawyer from another firm who had a similar interest."

Fruth & Anthony, which became Anthony Ostlund & Baer in 2001, specializes in business litigation, with an emphasis on financial fraud, securities, anti-trust and commercial real estate litigation.

"I do a lot of financial fraud litigation," Anthony says. "We represent a number of investment banking firms, large corporations, small corporations. If it's a complicated business transaction or a complicated valuation, we are usually involved."

In 1985, Anthony obtained the first treble damage civil RICO award for a client, and not long afterwards, a $15 million settlement under RICO in a matter representing a Fortune 500 company.

A self-described "aging athlete"—tennis, golf, running, biking—Anthony enjoyed successfully resolving a recent case in which he represented Major League Baseball in a dispute with the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission, the public agency that operates the Metrodome in Minneapolis. In another currently relevant case, he won an $11 million settlement on behalf of Department 56, Inc., a maker of collectibles and giftware, against Arthur Andersen, involving consulting done by the accounting firm.

For Anthony, the most exciting cases "are those that go to trial.... Time stands still but you are acutely aware of everything around you. And then you look at your watch and it's 5 o'clock—the end of the day."

He likes to represent the underdog, but points out that these days a small business "underdog" might be "a 100 million dollar business up against a four billion dollar business." That was the case when he obtained $9 million in compensatory and $7 million in punitive damages in John G. Kinnard and Company, Incorporated v. Dain Rauscher, Incorporated, et al., NASD Arbitration No. 98-00854, in a matter involving a raiding claim between two members of NASD.

Active both civically and politically, Anthony does a lot of professional writing and lecturing. He represents both the State of Minnesota and the state's attorney general.

In October, Anthony will be inducted into the American College of Trial Lawyers. He was named for the third year running as a "Super Lawyer" and as one of the top Minnesota business litigators by Minnesota Law & Politics magazine—designations he takes with a modest Midwestern grain of salt.

A stickler for courtesy and civility, Anthony likes to share—sometimes with juries—advice given by his father, who died when Anthony was 14. "Try to do the right thing and treat people respectfully, honestly and decently. That sounds pretty plain vanilla—but that's it," he says.

Anthony commuted to Temple for a semester in 1998 to teach a Monday night course in Advanced Trial Advocacy, an arrangement that allowed him to visit his daughter Brooke, then a student at the University of Pennsylvania. Brooke is now a law student at Northwestern and her younger sister Lindsay is a junior at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

His tenure as a member of the Board of Visitors will be a chance to "hopefully give something back," Anthony says, adding, "I'm happy about that. I probably wouldn't have gotten the opportunity to be a lawyer without Temple's generosity."

—Janet Blom Shea

C. Dale McClain has been named treasurer of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. McClain, a solo practitioner with offices in Haverford and Worcester, has previously served with the association as president of its conference of county bar leaders, as chair of its young lawyers association, and was founder and first chair of the group's general practice section. In 1990 McClain served as president of the Montgomery Bar Association and in 1991 was president of the Montgomery Bar Foundation.

1978

Nancy C. Alquist has been elected to a one-year term as president of the Bankruptcy Bar Association for the District of Maryland. Alquist is a partner in the litigation department and a member of the workouts and failed transactions group of the Baltimore office of Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll, and concentrates her practice in the areas of bankruptcy and creditors' rights litigation.

Joseph C. Bernstein has received the Pennsylvania Bar Association's Pro Bono Award for 2002, and has been appointed to the board of directors of North Penn Legal Services.

C. Murray Saylor Jr. was elected president of the American Association of Attorney-Certified Public Accountants at the organization's recent national convention. Saylor is a partner in The Saylor Law Firm in Atlanta, Georgia.

1980

Jay Barry Harris, a partner in Fineman & Bach, has been named vice chair for articles of the employment law section of the International Association of Defense Counsel. Harris, a defense litigator, also addressed a group of insurance professionals at the annual claims conference sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, where he presented a program on the use of the Unfair Claims Practices Act and the new privacy regulations in bad faith actions against insurers.

Adam Regenbogen writes, "As a workers' compensation law judge in New York State, I am hearing World Trade Center cases related to the September 11 terrorist attacks in Manhattan."

Michael W. Sozansky Jr. recently became a member of the business and government forum of the Hunterdon County Chamber of Commerce. Sozansky is a partner of the Somerville, New Jersey firm of Norris, McLaughlin & Marcus.

1981

Bernice J. Koplin has been elected chair of the central committee for the Philadelphia Orchestra for a two-year term. This committee, founded in 1904, is the original volunteer committee for the orchestra. Koplin has also been elected chair of planned giving for the Philadelphia chapter of the American Technion Society.

Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis recently awarded Kevin C. McCullough the 2002 Earl G. Harrison Pro Bono Award. McCullough received the award for his work on behalf of Caton Village, a comprehensive long-term residential care facility for women and children in Philadelphia.

1982

Lewis Goodman, a partner in the Lansdale, Pennsylvania firm Rubin, Glickman & Steinberg, has been appointed to the advisory committee of Beverly Healthcare of Lansdale. Goodman has extensive experience with elder care law and has taught mental health law at Hahnemann University's School of Allied Health Sciences and serves as solicitor and member of the board of directors of the Senior Adult Activity Center of Indian Valley.

1983

Steven N. Haas, a member of Cozen O'Connor's business law group, has been appointed to the board of the West Philadelphia branch of the Settlement Music School. The Settlement Music School, founded in 1908, is the largest community-based school of the arts in the United States.

Fred A. Pierantoni, a Luzerne County district judge, has been honored by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court for his years of service as a member, and chair for the past four years, of the minor court rules committee. Pierantoni has served as District Justice in Greater Pittston since 1992, and has also served as chair of the Pennsylvania special court judges rules committee since 1999 and is vice president of the Luzerne County District Justice Association.

1984

Guido A. DeAngelis was elected to the Allegheny County, Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas in 2002.

spoke on "Openings—A Defense Perspective." DeLorenzo works in the firm's Philadelphia office and is chair of its employment law practice group, where he focuses on defending civil rights actions and municipalities, and environmental and toxic tort litigation.

New Castle County, Delaware Councilman Robert S. Weiner was appointed vice-chair of the sustainability leadership team of the National Association of Counties. As a councilman, Weiner has led efforts in New Castle County on such issues as sustainable neighborhood development, smart growth and city-county collaboration.

1976

Gregory Lucyk has been selected as the new chief staff attorney at the Supreme Court of Virginia, where he has served for over 18 years, most recently serving as senior assistant attorney general and chief of the trial section of the office's civil litigation division.

1977

John Baloro LL.M. is dean of the law school of Vista University, in Bloemfontein, South Africa. Since receiving his LL.M. at Temple, he has served on the law faculty of five different law schools on the African continent, and has been dean at three of those schools.

Lukas Reiter '95

Former trial team champ leaves practice of law for "The Practice"

A lawyer representing an insurance company must defend his actions when he violates attorney/client privilege by telling the parents of a ten-year-old boy that the boy has an aneurysm which must be operated on immediately.

This could be the basis of a lively law school ethics discussion. In fact, it was the plotline of an award-winning episode of "The Practice," co-written by Lukas Reiter '95 and David E. Kelley. And it got them some attention.

At a gala reception in Los Angeles in June 2002, Reiter and Kelley were awarded the prestigious Humanitas Prize. Established in 1974, the prize recognizes television and motion picture writers whose work honestly explores the complexities of the human experience and sheds light on the positive values of life. Reiter and Kelley's episode of "The Practice" was cited for its assertion that "when life is at stake the moral law trumps the civil law." In the first tie ever in Humanitas history, "The Practice" shared the win for the 60-minute television category with Aaron Sorkin's "The West Wing."

Only seven years out of law school, Reiter's ascent to the awards platform in Los Angeles has been a rapid one. In his first job out of school at the Queens County DA's Office in New York, he was recruited to work in the Homicide Investigation Bureau.

After two and a half years in Queens, Reiter decided to leave the "practice" of law to pursue a career in the entertainment industry. He called friend and former law school classmate, Alex Wellen '95, who was also living in New York City, practicing intellectual property law at Pennie & Edmonds.

Both had been stand-outs in law school. Reiter was a national trial team champion in 1995, and was named National Advocate. Wellen was president of the Student Bar Association. They had worked together on the law review, with Wellen as an editor and Reiter as senior staff.

Together, Reiter and Wellen made the leap and decided to develop a television show about Internet crime. The two founded Eleven Eleven Productions, Inc. to launch a news magazine show titled "CyberCrime." The concept quickly sold and the two were hooked.

They moved themselves and the business to San Francisco for proximity to the industry. The cable show, broadcast on Tech TV and now executive-produced by Wellen, is in its third season and recently won a local Emmy Award.

Encouraged by the success of "CyberCrime," Reiter decided to try his hand at writing scripts for prime-time television. Soon after, he joined "The Practice" as a staff writer and will begin his third season with the critically-acclaimed program as a co-producer this fall.

Reiter credits Temple Law, and particularly Professor Edward Ohlbaum, with contributing to his current success. "My training at Temple was invaluable to me," Reiter says. "It gave me more than just experience in the courtroom setting; it reinforced the importance of teamwork, dedication and integrity."

"I can't say enough good things about Eddie Ohlbaum," Reiter continues. "He's the best there is. I counted on his guidance and friendship then, and I still do now."

Peter A. Martin has joined Squire, Sanders & Dempsey as of counsel in its Washington, D.C. office. Martin focuses his practice in the area of international trade and customs law.

1987

Louis S. Agre was recently elected Democratic ward leader for the 21st ward of Philadelphia. The 21st ward encompasses Roxborough, Manayunk, Wissahickon, and parts of East Falls. Agre and Maria Terpolilli reside in Roxborough with their two sons.

Mitchell Clair, a partner in the firm of Donald F. Manchel Associates, has been named the 2002 George F. Douglas Jr., Amicus Curiae Award honoree by the Pennsylvania Trial Lawyers Association. The award is given to one trial lawyer a year and recognizes outstanding accomplishments in brief writing and oral arguments before Pennsylvania's highest courts. Clair was honored for his work as a champion for injured victims in Pennsylvania, particularly in motor vehicle law.

Daphne Goldman, of counsel at Blank Rome Comisky & McCauley's tax and fiduciary department, participated in the Pennsylvania Bar Institute's "Fundamentals of Estate Planning: Wills, Taxes, Life Insurance . . . and More." Goldman was the course planner and lectured on the topic of basic estate planning documents.

Steven Miller, a partner in Blank Rome Comisky & McCauley's financial services department, is the president of the Kaiserman Branch of the Jewish Community Centers of Greater Philadelphia for a two-year term. Miller concentrates his practice on commercial lending, asset-based financing, and reorganizations and workouts.

Gary Tocci has joined Reed Smith Shaw & McClay. Tocci was formerly with Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis's labor and employment department.

1988

Raymond G. Bush has been elected chair of the Northampton County, Pennsylvania labor and employment committee, and is an adjunct professor of human resources management, labor relations, and employment policies at Muhlenberg College. Bush has written two books, Labor and Employment Law in Pennsylvania and Wage and Hour Law in Pennsylvania.

Harris J. Chernow announces the formation of Goldman Plon & Chernow with offices in Philadelphia, New York City, Westmont, New Jersey, and Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Chernow brings his national franchise practice to the firm and joins seven other attorneys in the practice of franchise and business law matters.

Philadelphia Assistant District Attorney Carmen M. Lineberger, J.D. '88, LL.M. '98, was elected secretary of the National Black Prosecutor's Association. Lineberger has been a prosecutor with the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office since 1990.

1992

Beverly A. Black was elected president of the Northeast Sunrises Rotary Club. Black is a solo practitioner with a concentration in immigration and elder law.

Molly Peckman recently joined Pepper Hamilton as director of associate development. Peckman was a litigation associate with Montgomery, McCracken, Walker & Rhoads.

David S. Sokolow, a partner with Fox Rothschild O'Brien & Frankel, was recently elected co-chair of the firm's health law group.

1993

Steve W. Day Jr., a shareholder with Marshall, Dennehey, Warner, Coleman & Goggin, presented a seminar and participated in a round-table conference in Harrisburg for the Pennsylvania Chapter of the American College of Cardiologists. Day spoke about "Preventable Medical Errors" and the recent Medical Malpractice Tort Reform Act. Day is acting managing attorney of the firm's Newtown Square, Pennsylvania office and co-chair of the firm's long-term liability practice group.

Diana E. McCarthy has been elected a partner at Drinker Biddle & Reath, specializing in both corporate and investment management law.

1994

Howard S. Meyers appeared as a guest commentator on CNBC to discuss the SEC's insider trading charges against the former CEO of ImClone. Meyers is a former SEC enforcement attorney and a partner in the securities law firm of Meyers and Heim in New York City.

1995

Donald M. Carley has been named a partner with Sonnenschein Nath & Rosenthal in its San Francisco office. Carley specializes in complex commercial litigation with a focus on intellectual property and insurance.

Cathy (Cullen) Cleary has been working as claims counsel to XL Environmental Inc. since 2001.

Steven R. Serfass and Jenny Y.C. Chang-Serfass announce the opening of Serfass Serfass & Roth with offices in Palmerton, Carbon County, Pennsylvania.

Michelle Cummins Wilkov has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating her practice in general civil and commercial litigation.

1996

Jason J. Asuncion writes, "I have joined the City of Camden City Attorney's Office as an assistant city attorney. My wife and I celebrated the birth of our first child, a girl."

Jo Bennett has joined the labor and employment department of Stevens & Lee. She was previously with the firm of Schnader, Harrison, Segal & Lewis.

Keith A. Dews writes, "I have recently joined Nattiel & Associates as a partner, concentrating in the areas of criminal defense, bankruptcy, and civil litigation."

In May 2002, Carole Sheffield earned an LL.M. in Taxation from Temple, receiving the first annual faculty award for outstanding achievement in the study of tax law.

1997

Kelly Phillips Erb and J. Christopher Erb are thrilled to announce the birth of their daughter Katherine "Katie" Estella Erb on June 16, 2002.

Christina Derry Frangiosa and her husband Vince announce the birth of their first child, Jessica Anne

Maria Zulick Nucci writes, "I spoke at the American Association of Airport Executives 74th annual conference and exposition in Dallas, Texas. The topic of my panel was the effects of September 11th on airport concessions contracting and operations, as well as revenue, which is increasingly critical as airports need to increase non-aviation revenue sources."

James M. Connolly has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating his practice in medical malpractice, product liability, and professional liability.

1985

Rita Buckley Connolly has been named the executive director of the Domestic Abuse Project of Delaware County, a non-profit organization whose aims are to stop abuse and aid victims. Connolly has experience in the healthcare industry and teaches sociology, healthcare law, and healthcare issues at Widener University.

Paula Johnson, associate professor in Syracuse University's College of Law, has been promoted to the rank of full professor. She is co-president of the Society of American Law Teachers. Her teaching and research areas focus on criminal and health law issues, particularly as they pertain to the lives of women.

Barry L. Klein has been named partner in the firm of Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll, where he is a member of the employees benefit group.

1986

Richard L. Fox's article "Restrictions on Charitable Bequests of Art: Recent Letter Rule Paints a Picture" is published in the September issue of Estate Planning. Fox is a partner in Dilworth Paxson's tax practice group.

Frangiosa, in April 2002. Frangiosa practices intellectual property and computer law with Montgomery, McCracken, Walker & Rhoads.

Lisa Scidurlo has left Schnader, Harrison, Segal & Lewis to become an associate in the labor and employment department of Stevens & Lee.

Sonya Zeigler has joined Adinolfi and Spevak as an associate, concentrating on estate planning, matrimonial law, and family law.

1998

Andrew B. Henry is a new associate at Marshall, Dennehy, Warner, Coleman & Goggin, where he concentrates his practice in defending employment law, labor law, environmental and toxic tort litigation.

William C. Youngblood has joined Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld in its Philadelphia office, and practices as a patent attorney in the firm’s patent/chemical department.

2000

Steven W. Besack has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating his practice in health care litigation. Besack was formerly with Catholic Health Initiatives’ corporate risk management department in Aston, Pennsylvania.

Darren R. Cruz writes, “I have joined Collins Collins Muir & Traver in Los Angeles and I practice civil litigation.”

Jennifer Holumzer writes, “I have joined the litigation department of White & Williams as an associate. I am concentrating my practice in the areas of insurance defense and workers’ compensation.”

Shelley R. James has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating her practice in medical malpractice, insurance fraud, and professional negligence.

Michael S. Waddington is a captain in the U.S. Army JAG Corps where he serves as a trial defense attorney in Fort Gordon, Georgia.

2001

Andrew R. Hurda has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating his practice in civil litigation.

Jody Ann Monney is an associate at Marshall, Dennehey, Warner, Coleman & Goggin. She is in the firm’s casualty department, where she concentrates in defense of medical malpractice and general liability matters.

Joseph Santoro has joined Parker, McCay & Criscuolo as an associate, practicing tax, corporate and business transactional law, mergers and acquisitions, and commercial real estate and finance law.

Maggie S. Soboleski has joined Klehr, Harrison, Harvey, Branzburg & Ellers as an associate in the bankruptcy department.

2002

Melissa B. Gorsline has joined McKissock & Hoffman as an associate, concentrating her practice in medical malpractice.

Michael P. Malloy, an associate in the litigation department of Fox Rothschild O’Brien & Frankel, was recently elected to the Democratic Committee in the 21st Ward, 9th Division of Philadelphia. Malloy has worked on over fifteen political campaigns and is a founding member of Young America Political Action Committee. He also serves as director of forensics for Saint Joseph’s University, where he coaches a twelve-member college speech team.

A seminar room in the newly-renovated Barrack Hall is named in recognition of the generosity of the law firm of Levy, Angstreich, Finney, Baldante, Rubenstein & Coren, P.C.

(Editor’s note: the firm was incorrectly named in the June, 2002 issue of ESQ.)

SAMUEL LANDER ’31

Samuel Lander, one of Temple’s most devoted friends, died at home on June 26, 2002, at the age of 94.

Dean Robert Reinstein says, “Sam was a great friend to the Law School and, as co-founder of the Law Foundation, he was dedicated to our mission of assisting law students and faculty in advancing legal education.”

Lander was president of the Law Foundation for 20 years, continuing as a director when he stepped down as president in 1992. The Law Foundation, which now has an endowment of over $2,000,000, has received a number of gifts in his honor.

Soft-spoken and courtly, Lander was president of Temple’s General Alumni Association from 1976 to 1978 and served as the Association’s counsel. He was awarded the General Alumni Association’s Distinguished Alumni Service Award in 1974.

Recipient of the Law School’s certificate of honor in 1962, he was a past president of the Law Alumni Association and served on the association’s executive board for many years. He received a special achievement award from the law alumni in 1985 and was the first recipient of the Conwell Society Award presented by Temple University in 1996.

Lander was among a group of dedicated law alumni who helped keep the school open during a critical period in the late 30s and early 40s. Judge Charles Klein ’21 once recalled, “A group of us were active in the school management during this period. Sam Lander spent full-time on the law school as well as full-time on his law practice.”

Lander, who continued his estates and corporation practice until a year or so ago, was inducted into the Philadelphia Bar Association’s 70-year club in June 2001.

An avid fan of the Temple Owls basketball team, Lander attended games “right up to the last,” says John H. MacDonald, executive director of the Temple University Alumni Association. “He was Temple’s #1 fan and an inspiration to all of us who had the privilege of knowing and working with him.”

Samuel Lander is survived by his daughter, Susan M. Lander.

—Janet Blom Shea

JOSEPH H. HENNESSY ’71

Joseph H. Hennessy attended Temple Law in the evening division. It was convenient—he had a full-time day job a few hundred feet away, teaching political philosophy at Temple University. His curiosity about the application of legal theory to practical problems in the marketplace led him to enroll in law school, and he immediately showed a natural aptitude for the law.

Starting as an associate in Morgan Lewis’ international corporate section, Hennessy played a key role in the expansion of the firm’s international business practice. In 1977 he was assigned to the firm’s affiliated office in Paris, and was subsequently one of the founders of the firm’s London office, where he served from 1981 to 1983. After spending the following two years practicing in Brussels, he returned to Philadelphia in 1985. Hennessy was made partner in 1978.

Following retirement in May 2001, Hennessy assumed the role of board chairman of InMentia, a client of the firm. At the time of his death June 14, 2002, he was also serving as counsel to Morgan Lewis.

Although he was born in Pittsburgh, Hennessy moved to Philadelphia as a teenager and attended La Salle High School and La Salle University, where he was valedictorian. After earning a Ph.D. in political philosophy from Notre Dame, he taught at Assumption College in Worcester, Massachusetts, before joining the faculty at Temple University, where he taught for six years.

A classroom in the law school’s newly-renovated Barrack Hall was recently named in honor of Hennessy, who is survived by his wife, Alice, and four daughters.

IN MEMORIAM
Lewis R. Linet	Class of 1924
Samuel Lander	Class of 1931
Daniel K. Greenfield	Class of 1936
Paul A. Liebman	Class of 1938
Victor L. Drexel	Class of 1951
Clyde F. Measey	Class of 1953
Joseph H. Hennessy	Class of 1971
Constance Wombough Maier	Class of 1988

Third year law student Donna Marie Johnson (center) received an Agent of Change award from Womens Way. Shown with former Womens Way director Lynn Yeakel (left), and current director Melissa Weiler Gerbner (right), Johnson is one of Temple’s first group of Public Interest Scholars.

Philadelphia-based Womens Way selected Johnson for her work with adolescents, describing her as “a remarkable law student, recognized for her energetic, compassionate devotion to public service.”

SEND US YOUR NEWS!

Dear Temple Law Graduate,
Please send us news of your recent professional accomplishments or contributions to your community.

Name _____ Phone _____

Address (change of address only) _____

Firm/agency name and address (change of address only) _____

Send to: Janet Goldwater
Temple Esq.
Temple University Beasley School of Law
1719 North Broad Street, Philadelphia, PA 19122

Date _____

Class of _____ Degree _____

To change your mailing address, call (215) 204-1187 or go to the website at <http://www.temple.edu/lawschool/>.

Legal Intelligencer Recognizes Temple Faculty Members

Professors Epps, Haddon and Ting among 50 “most influential” minority lawyers in state

Professor and Associate Dean JoAnne A. Epps, Professor Phoebe A. Haddon and Professor Jan Ting were recently named among the fifty most influential minority attorneys in Pennsylvania by The Legal Intelligencer. Eleven law school alumni were also listed.

“We’re very proud of our faculty and alumni and gratified that their excellence is recognized by the Pennsylvania legal community,” says Dean Robert J. Reinstein.

Professor and Associate Dean JoAnne Epps was recently elected to council of the ABA section of litigation, becoming the first black woman—and only the second law professor—to be named to that position. A former deputy city attorney (1976-1980) for Los Angeles and assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania (1980-1985), Epps currently holds the voluntary position of president of the board of directors of the Defender Association in Philadelphia. Her work with the Defender Association, combined with her impressive background in criminal law, recently earned her an appointment by Mayor Street as panel chief of his Task Force on Police Discipline. Epps earned a J.D. from Yale University in 1976. In addition to her administrative duties as associate dean, she teaches classes in criminal law, criminal procedure, trial advocacy, and evidence.

JoAnne A. Epps

Phoebe A. Haddon

Jan Ting

Professor Phoebe Haddon is active in the leadership of a wide array of organizations. She currently serves on the committee on race and gender of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, is chair of the ALI-ABA diversity in CLE subcommittee, and serves on the boards of Womens Way, Smith College, and the Law School Admissions Council. She is former president (1998-2000) of the board of governors of the Society of American Law Teachers, the largest organization of law professors. Prior to joining Temple Law in 1981, Haddon practiced at the law firm of Wilmer Cutler & Pickering in Washington, D.C. During a sabbatical, she served as president of the low-income housing development corporation, the Philadelphia Development Mortgage Assistance Corporation, and then as the deputy executive director of the Redevelopment Authority of the City of Philadelphia. With a J.D.

from Duquesne University and an LL.M. from Yale University, Haddon teaches constitutional law, products liability and jurisprudence.

Former assistant commissioner at the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the U.S. Department of Justice, Professor Jan Ting is regularly featured in the media as an immigration law expert. He has appeared on ABC’s Nightline and NBC’s Today Show, NPR and CNN; his op-ed articles and interviews appear regularly in newspapers nationwide. Prior to joining Temple Law in 1977 and serving as director of its graduate tax program from 1994-2001, Ting concentrated his practice in tax law at the Philadelphia law firm of Pepper Hamilton & Scheetz.

Ting, who received a J.D. from Harvard University in 1975, teaches immigration and tax law at Temple.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Saturday, October 5
Class of 1972 Reunion
7:00-10:00 pm, Barrack Hall

Thursday, October 10
TLAA Fall Cocktail Reception
Honoring Dean Robert J. Reinstein
5:30-7:30 pm, Shusterman Hall

Saturday, October 12
Classes of 1991 & 1992 Reunion
3:00 pm, Lucy’s Hat Shop

Saturday, October 19
Class of 1977 Reunion
7:00-10:00 pm, Barrack Hall

Saturday, November 2
“Lawyering for the Mentally Ill”
Journal of Political and Civil Rights Symposium
9:00 am-4:00 pm, Shusterman Hall

Thursday, November 14
“Rediscovering International Law After September 11”
Lecture by UCSB Professor Richard Falk
4:00 pm, Duane Morris LLP Moot Court Room

LAW SCHOOL AND ALUMNI NEWS • FALL 2002

VISIT OUR WEBSITE: <http://www.temple.edu/lawschool/>
WRITE TO US: lawalum@astro.temple.edu

JAMES E. BEASLEY
SCHOOL OF LAW
OF TEMPLE UNIVERSITY
1719 North Broad Street
Philadelphia, PA 19122

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION
U.S. POSTAGE PAID
PHILADELPHIA, PA
PERMIT NO. 1044