

USING YOUR HEAD: ANALYZING
THE LANDSCAPE
OF CONCUSSIONS IN FOOTBALL

Table of Contents

Samuel D. Hodge Jr.	1
Dr. Stephany Coakley.....	2
Dr. S. Ausim Azizi, MD, PhD	3
Ken Jacobsen, Esq.....	4
Presented By.....	5

Presented By:

SAGA

The Sport and Governance Association (SAGA) is an undergraduate-run student organization in the School of Sport, Tourism & Hospitality Management that focuses on the governance and policy sides of the sports industry.

SELS

The Temple Law School Sports and Entertainment Law Society (SELS) seeks to build a bridge between the law students and those who can offer academic and career advice in the sports and entertainment law sectors

HLS

The Temple Law School Health Law Society (HLS) is committed to increasing student understanding and awareness of the field of Health Law.

Professor Ken Jacobsen, Esq. | Practice
Professor of Law at Temple University

A prolific author of articles and commentary, Professor Jacobsen is a frequent lecturer and seminar participant on topics involving sports law, trial practice and procedure and complex commercial litigation. Mr. Jacobsen is also a businessman who co-owns successful businesses in the sports and entertainment industries. Among Mr. Jacobsen’s businesses is his ownership interest in the Wilmington Blue Rocks Professional Baseball Club, a single “A” affiliate of the Kansas City Royals who play in a 6,500 seat multi-purpose stadium adjacent to Interstate 95 in Wilmington, Delaware. Through his law office and sports marketing company Sports Concepts, Inc., Mr. Jacobsen provides legal advisory and consulting services to professional athletes on promotions, product endorsements, appearances and other marketing activities. Among Mr. Jacobsen’s clients are former Phillies All Star outfielder Shane Victorino; former Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Michael Vick; NBA basketball legend Julius “Dr. J” Erving and other present and former notable professional athletes.

Meet the Panelists:

Samuel D. Hodge, Jr. | Professor at Temple Fox
School of Business and Executive Director Center for Innovation in Teaching and Learning

Samuel D. Hodge, Jr. is a professor of Legal Studies at Temple University where he teaches both law and anatomy. He also serves as the Director of the Center for Innovation in Teaching and Learning. Sam is a prolific author with books that include Head Trauma and Brain Injuries for Lawyers, ABA (2016); The Forensic Autopsy, ABA (2014); The Spine, ABA (2013); and Clinical Anatomy for Attorneys, ABA (2012). Professor Hodge is a graduate of the Temple University Beasley School of Law and the Graduate Division of the Law School. Sam obtained a Certificate in Law and Anatomy from Temple University School of Medicine and received mediation training at the Strauss Institute for Dispute Resolution at Pepperdine Law School.

Dr. Stephany Coakley, PhD | CC-AASP, Senior Associate Athletic Director for Mental Health, Wellness and Performance for Temple University Athletics

Dr. Stephany Coakley is the Senior Associate Athletic Director for Mental Health, Wellness and Performance for Temple University Athletics. She is a certified mental performance consultant and licensed professional counselor. Dr. Coakley coordinates all mental health services for student-athletes on 19 teams. Dr. Coakley is dedicated to providing excellence in assessment, intervention, treatment and support for student-athletes as they strive to realize their full potential in sport, academics, and beyond.

Dr. S. Ausim Azizi, MD, PhD

Dr. Azizi is a Professor and Chair for Neurology and a Professor for the Center for Substance Abuse Research at the Lewis Katz School of Medicine at Temple University. With his clinical interests in movement disorders and strokes, his current research is focused on investigation of cell-based therapies for repair and regeneration of the damaged central nervous system. His team is exploring the signaling pathways of differentiation of adult stem cells into useful neural cells for future treatment of brain trauma and stroke. Dr. Azizi completed his MD at Southwestern Medical School in Dallas, Texas.